CLEMENT CLAIMS A SHARE OF THE PROFITS.

The complaint, which was drawn up by Brown & Henderson, alleges that a contract exists between planning and defendant, whereby De Lamar agrees to give Clen. nt, the widely known mining engineer and expert, an eighth of the net profits realized from the purchase, operation or sale of any mining property to which the plainting draws defendants attention and which is examined and reported favorably upon by Clement. It is further alleged that the agreement provioes that no sale of any such mining property examined and favorably reported upon by Clement, the organization of a corporation.

Clement then declares that he invited De Lamar's attention to the marity of the Wall group of claims, in West Mountain unining district, and in pursuance of his report thereof the captain purchased.

Clement of the wall group of claims, in West Mountain unining district, and in pursuance of his report thereof the captain purchased and the given by the property from Colonel Wall, paying therefor the sum of $60,000 on May 9, 1899, further, it is alleged that Captain De Lamar, on March 7 of this year, contracted with Wall for the sale back to the first of the fourth interest in the property from Colonel Wall, paying therefor the sum of $60,000 on May 9, 1899, further, it is alleged that Captain De Lamar, on March 7 of this year, contracted with Wall for the sale back to the first of the wall for the sale back to the first of the wall for the sale back to the first of the wall for the sale back to the first of the first of the man and the judges settled all disputes by punishing both offenders.

Clement then declares that he invited De laynar's attention to the murits of the Wall group of claims, in West Mountain unining district, and in pursuance of his report thereon the captain purchased a fourth interest in the property from Colonel Wall, paying therefor the sum of $50,000 on May 9, 1899. Further, it is alleged that Captain De Lamar, on March 7 of this year, contracted with Wall for the sale back to him of the fourth interest purchased two years ago for $100,000, and that the deed is in escrow with W. S. McCornfek at his bank, deliverable on or before June 7. Captain De Lamar, it is charged, now denies that this purchase and sale comes within the terms of the agreement between plaintiff and defendant.

The prayer in the complaint is that a decree of court be granted to Clement entitling film to an eighth interest in the profits of the sale of the Wall property, that Captain De Lamar be 4cclared to be acting as trustee for plaintiff from such interest and that he brestrained from concluding the sale without Clement's consen. that defendant McCorniek be enjoined from further negotiating for the sale of the property until the rights of plaintiff are determined.

Verdict in Inquest on Roy Murray.

BODY IS TAKEN HOME MYSTERY STILL SURROUNDS

BOY'S DEATH.

Murray's Ranch, near Marysvale, April 17.-The body of Raymend Murray rests at last in a decent grave on ranch of his parents here. A funeral train of more than a score of sturdy miners, footsore, weary and worn out from the hardest kind of work, reached the Murray residence with the corpse at 6 o'clock last even-word came to Marysvale late Sunday night that the body had been found by the searchers who have been patroling the mountains since the boy's loss first became known and early Monday morning parties were on their way prepared to make a litter and sleds and bring the corpse home. When the party reached the scene it was found that Justice Fitzgerald of Kimberley had held an inquest. The jury found that Murray died as the result of a bullet wound inflicted by himself or some other person.

wound inflicted by himself or some other person.

The body was found Sunday by Marvin Dalton, who lives at the Silver King, and with whom Ray expected to visit. Dalton's dog sniffed and Mr. Dalton drove his pole in the snow at that point, striking the right leg.

All that the boy had with him when he started was found except a small flour sack containing a present for Mrs. Dalton, some trinkets for the children and some magazines for the family reading. That no doubt, will be found when the snow merts.

The most blood was found below the head, but blood was found down the shirt and on the overalls, showing that the young man was in a standing position when he received the wound.

the young man was in a standing posi-tion when he received the wound. There was one bullet hole, plainly to be seen in the head. At the close of the inquest an improvised sied was made with two pairs of snow shoes and some rooting iron and the body strapped thereto, and the funeral march to the 'Vale began more than six miles of which tas down a narrow gorge filled with snow except where the Deer creek crosses it so frequently to where the wagons and horses had been left. Trip Down the Trail.

It was a scene of sadness, but also of magnetic beauty, that most peculiarly affected the onlooker and one that will remain in the memory of those who saw it as long as his life shall last. Twenty-odd grizzled, tanned and sturdy prospectors and miners, wallowing through snow waist deep down steep declines and in turns lugging to hold the sled containing the corpse from dashing down and up again, pulling steadily, but strongly, that precious load, anon picking it up bodily and carrying it across the stream and around dangerous places and sometimes across most difficult sidehills, and all the while handling the corpse as tenderly and gently as any woman would wish to have the dead from her most dearly beloved handled. The winding and weird procession was most sad and mournful, for the boy, whose clay was being taken to sepulcher, had been for years the pride, pet and favorite of everyone of those hard-handed sons of toil who were now bearing the corpse Trip Down the Trail.

the head, fust above the level of the eyebrow, one and one-half inches to the right of the eye orbit, passing directly through the frontal bone, causing an extensive fracture and passing behind the orbit of the eye and entering the brain. In entering the bullet struck the bone in such a manner as to divide or split the bullet. The plece that did not lodge in the brain passed out of the head an inch above the eyebrow and through the visor of the golf cap worn at the time by Murray. At the entrance of the ball the hair was singed and the skin powder-burned with powder embedded in the fiesh.

Theory of His Friends.

Theory of His Friends. The theory of how the young man met his death by those best informed new is: It is known that for a few nights before he left he had slept little, being out, and his appetite had not been good, hence on starting he was more weak and tired than he knew. He knew the country well even which not been good, hence on starting he was more weak and tired than he knew. He knew the country well over which he was going, and being accustomed to the mountains and mountain travel started, as he thought, in ample time to reach the Silver King before dark. Wading through the snow had thred him. A deserted cabin containing the remains of a fire which he had built therein, was found by the searchers. It is thought that there he stopped to rest a little and fell asleep, awaking late at night when the fire had gone out. Starting out cold and numb, for it is remembered now that it was a bitter cold night, he reached the last steep hill, with face and hards frozen and completely exhausted. Reaching for his pistor and aiming to alarm the sleepers at the top of the hill and thus procure assistance, he shot, and his hands being frozen and he thred and faint, he could not handle the pistol well, and it being a heavy one it fell against his head just before exploding. How he struggled and fell back down the hill and got in the position he did with his gun back in the scabbard, or course can only be guessed at. The pistol was a five-shooter and contained, when found, one loaded carfridge and three empty shells. There was one chamber entirely empty.

The boy started on his trip on March S. Nothing being heard from him for sometime uneasiness was felt for his safety, and by the 26th searching parties were scouring the mountains, and continuous searching has been kept up ever since. Ray was but 22 years of age on the 26th of January last, and was unmarried. He was born here and had lived here all his life.

The bill to allow the ex-queen $12,000 a year as a pension has two substitutes, one proposing to give het $250,000 in a lump sum and the other to make at this time as appropriation of $12,000 for her for the next two years. Most of the independents are understood to favor giving the $56,000. The house has finally passed a bill to provide for use of the Hawmian as well as the English language in the circuit courts of the territory. WRITES OF THE QUEEN.

Author Tells Why Victoria Disliked

Gladstone So Bitterly. New York, April 17.-The Quarterly Review, according to the London correspondent of the Tribune, contains a remarkable article on Queen Victoria. evidently written from a precise and intimate knowledge during a period of fifty years. The article is not signed, but it is, perhaps, the first character study of the queen made by any competent writer who had the advantage of personal acquaintance with her. throws a new light upon many secret passages in the history of the reign, and contains a series of fresh ancedotes il-lustrating the queen's characteristic traits of trenchant humor and racy

The explanation given of the queen's prejudice against Mr. Gladstone is that it started in the suspicion that he gave her too much work to do, until she was, as she put it, 'dead beat.' He tried in his eagerness to press her to do what she considered to be his work and when she resented it and he expected it. and when she resented it and he re-newed the attempt, she formed a per-tipacious prejudice against him which never was removed. The author stat-ed that it has always been an element ed that it has always been an element in her reticence with regard to Mr. Gladstone that he was too high church and had the mind of a Jesuit.

The queen's own attitude towards religion is discussed judiciously. The headship of the Anglican church or the Scotch Presbyterianism she considered to be a part of the business of state craft and did not trouble her conscience about it. Probably the form of service which she preferred was that of the Presbyterian church, but she was a broad church woman, with no curjosity about creeds. She siked Roman Catholics much better than Anglican
